This RFP is issued as a public notice to ensure that all interested, qualified institutions have a fair opportunity to submit applications for funding. The amount of each grant award is subject to both the availability of funds and the quality and viability of applications received. IRI reserves the right to make multiple awards or no awards under this RFP.

a. Eligibility Criteria
Proposals will be considered from legally established Bangladeshi nongovernment organizations (NGOs), civil society organizations (CSOs), academic and higher education institutions, research institutes, or comparable organizations.

b. Timing
Research projects will commence in late August 2014, with preliminary reports due on November 30, 2014, and final reports due on December 31, 2014. Research findings will be released prior to January 31, 2015.

c. Intended Audience
IRI intends to publish and disseminate research findings as part of the Bangladesh Elections Support Activities (BESA) project, funded by the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) and the United Kingdom Department for International Development (DFID). Research project findings will be used to stimulate discussion among civil society, academia and, elections stakeholders by providing concrete data and analysis on Bangladesh’s electoral administration and processes.
II. Research Study Description

IRI encourages the submission of innovative proposals with areas of study that are not commonly addressed in academic or public policy research projects. Areas of research could include:

- Election systems that best mitigate conflict;
- Characteristics of strong, independent electoral bodies;
- Best practices in local governance and devolution;
- The “no vote” option and other forms of ballot protest;
- Electoral systems that promote consensus and greater party participation;
- Unions in Bangladesh and the potential for special interest politics;
- Foreign remittances and their connection to political finance;
- Political party youth wings and their influence on party policy platforms;
- Election time government, including options beyond reviving the caretaker government model; and
- Hartal dynamics, the protest mindset, and their effects on the electoral environment and results.

The research topics listed above are suggestive. IRI welcomes innovative research proposals on the range of topics related to Bangladesh’s political culture and/or electoral politics.

III. Application Instructions

Applications will include two components: a technical application and a cost application. All applications are due by 11:59pm BDT on July 24, 2014. a. Technical Application Evaluation Criteria
The technical application will be worth a total of 80 points.

Technical Merit (40 points): Applications will be evaluated on the strength of their technical understanding of the proposed research field and their approach to designing and implementing a research study that will meet the specifications described in Section II: Research Study Description.

Technical Methodology (25 points): Applications will be evaluated on the rigor and soundness of their methodology for constructing and completing the proposed research project. Proposals containing qualitative, quantitative or a combination of research methods will be considered on equal grounds.

Research Team (15 points): Applications will be evaluated based on their capability statement and organizational capacity annex and be scored on the depth and relevance of previous research work.

b. Cost Application Evaluation Criteria
The cost application will be worth a total of 20 points and will be evaluated for cost realism and cost effectiveness. The cost application will also be evaluated on:

- All work in the technical application being represented in the budget.
- The proposed prices are appropriate and competitive.
- Each budgeted item is necessary to complete the work proposed in the technical application.

Applicants must also demonstrate the reasonableness of the amount they request. There is a maximum of $25,000 available; however, applicants must clearly demonstrate the need for the grant amount they request.
V. Apparently Successful Applicant

Applicants recommended to receive a grant under this RFP will be provided detailed guidelines and templates to finalize the grant agreement and will be supported by IRI during the process. Funding will be contingent upon satisfactory completion of the necessary templates. It is anticipated that a completed grant package should be finalized three (3) weeks after the invitation has been delivered to a selected applicant.

VI. Terms and Conditions

IRI may, at their discretion and without explanation to the prospective recipients, at any time choose to discontinue this RFP without obligation to such prospective recipients.

Under no circumstances will IRI reimburse any costs that applicants may incur in the preparation or submission of an application.
