Background:

The International Republican Institute (IRI) is a nonprofit, nonpartisan, organization dedicated to advancing freedom and democracy worldwide. Since 1983, IRI has worked to develop democratic institutions and ideals, carrying out a variety of international programs to promote freedom, self-government and the rule of law worldwide. IRI provides technical assistance in the areas of political party strengthening, developing civic institutions and open elections, promoting democratic governance and advancing the rule of law.

IRI will be conducting a long-term election observation mission in Ukraine to observe the electoral process before the country's 2019 presidential elections. IRI is currently recruiting candidates for twelve Long Term Observer (LTO) positions, plus alternates. It is expected that deployment for all selected candidates will take place at least six weeks ahead of Election Day which is expected to be held March 31, 2019 and will remain on the ground one week after the final election round. The deadline for candidate applications is November 23, 2018 and applications are assessed on a rolling basis.

LTOs will be assigned to the eastern, western, central or southern regions of Ukraine and will travel to multiple municipalities in their assigned region to conduct pre-election observation activities. LTOs are given significant independence and are expected to maintain high standards of professionalism, impartiality and cultural awareness at all times. LTO safety is a serious priority for IRI and candidates must be willing to carefully follow all communication and security protocols. LTOs will be managed by and report directly to IRI's Program Director in Kyiv.

The LTOs serve as the backbone of IRI's observation project and are expected to observe, assess and report on key local-level indicators of the electoral process. The LTO teams will conduct ongoing analysis of the electoral environment through engagement with election stakeholders such as political party supporters, domestic and international groups, Ukrainian election management bodies and elected and non-elected officials. Teams will deliver weekly reports to the Program Director at IRI's field office in Kyiv. This information will be used to generate public and private reports in order to build confidence in the democratic process and to highlight areas requiring additional attention to domestic and international stakeholders. In addition to conducting observation of election processes, LTO teams will be instrumental in shaping the Short Term Observation (STO) strategy and IRI's pre-election observation report.

LTOs must be fluent in English, both verbal and written. LTOs cannot be citizens of Ukraine.
