Background

The International Republican Institute (IRI) is a nonprofit, nonpartisan, organization dedicated to advancing freedom and democracy worldwide. Since 1983, IRI has worked to develop democratic institutions and ideals, carrying out a variety of international programs to promote freedom, self-government and the rule of law worldwide. IRI provides technical assistance in the areas of political party strengthening, developing civic institutions and open elections, promoting democratic governance and advancing the rule of law.

The International Republican Institute is an international non-governmental organization, registered with the government, and with an office in Bamako, Mali from which it conducts programming throughout the region.

As violent extremist organizations expand their zones of influence in the central Sahel and increasingly threaten northern border communities in the Littoral States, IRI seeks to integrate the best practices and lessons learned from rigorously evaluated community-led prevention and countering violent extremism (P/CVE) interventions in target border communities into a regional P/CVE strategy ratified by Burkina Faso, Ghana, Côte d'Ivoire, Togo, and Benin through coordination with the Accra Initiative and the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS).

Statement of Work

OBJECTIVES OF THE RESEARCH

IRI'S INFORMATIONAL NEEDS

Given the sociopolitical vulnerability of youth living in northern rural border communities in the Littoral States, IRI needs to better understand the perspectives of the subregion's youth and their experiences with and participation in the management of conflicts that impact their lives, particularly how these experiences leave local youth vulnerable to violent extremism. Using life history analysis as an analytical model, IRI seeks to understand youth experiences with violence in the region through a deep dive into individual experiences with families and livelihoods at the village level. The life history analysis model will focus on youth perceptions of the topics mentioned above and will probe the participants' assessment of the current status of intergroup social cohesion at the local and personal level while also inviting respondents to articulate opportunities for growth and interventions in their respective communities. Through the life history analysis model, the firm will use the following questions to guide the research:

- How do we explain violence amongst youth in the target communities of the Littoral States?
- How does violence amongst this group of youth manifest itself?
- What is the description of youth who engage in violence within these communities?
- What is the demographic breakdown of youth who engage in violence (e.g. gender, ethnicity, religion)?
- Who are the beneficiaries (direct or indirect) and victims of youth violence in these communities?
- What is the extent to which youth in these communities participate in community conflict resolution systems?
- In what ad hoc, youth-led conflict resolution processes do young people participate in these communities?
- To what extent are youth satisfied with the conflict resolution systems in their communities?

METHODOLOGY

Format of inquiry: IRI will design its life history research through a carefully curated list of open-ended interview questions that would seek to elicit and encourage detailed reflections.

Interviewee selection: IRI will select one rural border community from each of the five countries. In each community, the Offeror will identify a range of interviewees who could represent perspectives from:

- State and non-state actors;
- supporters and dissenters of the government;
- traditional and non-traditional elites;
- men and women participants; and youth and elderly community members.

The Offeror will develop a list of stakeholders who are most relevant to understanding the nature of violent extremism, conflict and political marginalization. IRI will then select those individuals whose perspectives are crucial to understanding the dynamics of violence and political exclusion. These are, generally, the local information gatekeepers, norm-setters, and behavior enforcers. For each of the 5 countries, IRI will aim to conduct a minimum of 30 life history interviews—at the minimum, 20 youth (10 women, 10 men) and 10 adults (5 women, 5 men).

Interviewer Selection: The Offeror will work closely with its local contacts to identify individuals who are skilled interviewers and who are trained in the art of listening, enabling conversations, and co-creating narratives with the interviewees. The Offeror will provide training to these individuals on the inherent challenges with open-ended interviews and strategies to overcome those challenges, as necessary.

Data Collection and Analysis: The interviewee and the interviewer will jointly construct narratives on the life of the interviewee, using multiple data sources (interview, observation). While standard interview processes separate data collection from data analysis, Life History interviews merge the two, by simultaneously listening, engaging, interpreting and re-interpreting memories about specific events that are of interest to the interviewer.

GENERAL RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE OFFEROR

The Offeror organization will be responsible for managing all logistical aspects of the project and should involve local support staff as necessary to complete the following:

Screener. IRI will provide a draft screening questionnaire within two weeks of contract award based on the specifications above. The Offeror organization will review offer edits within three working days of receipt. Following IRI approval, the Offeror will translate the screener into French and the predominant language(s) spoken in each of the selected communities. IRI reserves the right to review the translation prior to recruitment launch.

Recruiting participants. The Offeror organization will recruit all participants according to the screening criteria listed above. At least one week prior to the start of the first focus interview, the Offeror will provide a brief description of the composition of the interviewees in terms of age, gender, occupation, etc. Offeror should recruit at least 30 participants per community—a minimum of 20 youth (10 women, 10 men) and 10 adults (5 women, 5 men)—as well as 2-3 alternates per community in case any of the original participants are unable to participate. All participants will be required to give written informed consent to participate in this study. IRI will provide draft informed consent language which may be adjusted by the bidder in order to conform to any specific legal requirements in the research country.

Discussion guide. IRI will provide the draft discussion guide and a draft life history analysis guide within two weeks of contract award. Offeror will be welcome to offer suggestions for improvement and is expected to format and translate the discussion guide into French and the predominant language(s) spoken in each of the selected communities. IRI reserves the right to review the translation(s.) At least one week prior to the first planned session, the discussion guide will be piloted with 2 pilot participants per community. This pilot will be moderated by the same interviewer who will conduct the actual interviews. The pilot session will be video (preferred) or audio recorded, and the recording will be provided to IRI. The Offeror will prepare a 1-2-page pilot report for each community, based on a template provided by IRI. Once IRI has reviewed the pilot report, some modification of the discussion guide may be required.

Interview facilitator. Offeror will provide a trained and experienced interviewer in each community. The interviewer should familiarize him/herself with the topic of discussion prior to the interviews.

Recording of individual interviews. Audio record all aspects of research necessary for full and accurate data collection, transcript generation and inclusion of illustrative samples in the final analytical report. Offeror will audio record all interviews, which should be recorded in high quality with clear sound.

Written summary of individual interviews. Offeror will provide a 2-3-page written summary of the interviews in each community in idiomatic French or English within one week after the final interview. A template will be provided by IRI.

Transcripts. The Offeror will provide IRI with full verbatim transcripts in French or English of each group and interview.

TIMING

The interviews should be held in August 2021; the exact timing needs to be determined in close consultation with IRI.

Evaluation and Award Process

1. IRI may contact any Bidder for clarification or additional information, but Bidders are advised that IRI intends to evaluate the offers based on the written proposals, without discussions, and reserves the right to make decisions based solely on the information provided with the initial proposals. IRI may but is not obligated to conduct additional negotiations with the most highly rated Bidders prior to award of a contract and may at its sole discretion elect to issue contracts to one or more Bidders.
2. Mathematical errors will be corrected in the following manner: If a discrepancy exists between the total price proposed and the total price resulting from multiplying the unit price by the corresponding amounts, then the unit price will prevail and the total price will be corrected. If there is a discrepancy between the numbers written out in words and the amounts in numbers, then the amount expressed in words will prevail. If the Bidder does not accept the correction, the offer will be rejected.
3. IRI may determine that a proposal is unacceptable if the prices proposed are materially unbalanced between line items or sub-line items. Unbalanced pricing exists when, despite an acceptable total evaluated price, the price of one or more contract line items is significantly overstated or understated as indicated by the application of cost or price analysis techniques. A proposal may be rejected if IRI determines that the lack of balance poses an unacceptable risk.
4. IRI will conduct a source selection based as follows:
IRI intends to make an award to the responsible Bidder based on the following evaluation factors:
 - a) Technical evaluation, (including technical capabilities, proposed technical approach, and personnel qualifications) – 60 percent
 - Technical capabilities: offeror applies ethnographic and/or life history research approaches to qualitative studies on violent extremism, youth-led peacebuilding, intercommunal violence prevention, and/or conflict resolution – 20 percent.
 - Proposed technical approach: offeror incorporates life history research methodology and community-informed robust conflict analysis into approach. Participatory action research approach preferred, but not required – 15 percent.
 - Offeror demonstrates prior experience in target countries (Burkina Faso, Ghana, Togo, Benin, Côte d’Ivoire) and on subject matter (youth experiences with conflict and conflict resolution), as evidenced by description of previous, similar projects and by 3 references – 25 percent.

b) Price – 40 percent

IRI intends to evaluate Bidders' proposals in accordance with these factors and make an award to the responsible Bidder whose proposal is most advantageous to the program.

5. If a cost realism analysis is performed, cost realism may be considered in evaluating performance or price.
