Background: The International Republican Institute (IRI) is a nonprofit, nonpartisan, organization dedicated to advancing freedom and democracy worldwide. Since 1983, IRI has worked to develop democratic institutions and ideals, carrying out a variety of international programs to promote freedom, self-government and the rule of law worldwide. IRI provides technical assistance in the areas of political party strengthening, developing civic institutions and open elections, promoting democratic governance and advancing the rule of law.

Media and civil society play a unique and pivotal role in providing oversight and accountability to disclose and prevent corruption. Unfortunately, institutional opacity and limited access to public information restrict opportunities for citizen scrutiny of anticorruption efforts. Meanwhile, the capacity of journalists to carry out rigorous and safe investigations of acts of corruption varies considerably and inhibits the generation of well-informed reporting of corruption within government institutions.

In this environment, IRI combines capacity building and exchange activities to strengthen the internal investigative capacity of journalists and media outlets across Latin America and develop a transnational network of journalists and justice sector actors who will be able to support one another for improved government accountability. In each country included in the project, IRI will work with a local media-focused association or civil society organization to co-implement a series of trainings and exchanges to build media oversight and accountability.

Eligibility: Organization

Period of Performance: September 1, 2020 – August 31, 2021

Statement of Work: The sub-awardee will work with IRI to facilitate logistics for a series of media trainings, conduct follow-up mentorship for participants, and conduct exchange activities that ultimately build the capacity of journalists and media-focused civic stakeholders to investigate corruption and provide government oversight.

Identification of Investigative Journalist Fellows

First, the sub-awardee will work with IRI to identify a group of 15 to 18 journalists to participate in a national investigative journalism fellowship program. These journalists should represent a diverse cross-section of media platforms, including TV, radio and print, and will have a demonstrated track record or interest in the issues of corruption and illicit financing. The sub-awardee can recruit participants through direct invitation or open applications. To the extent possible, there should be gender parity among participants as well as an effort to include historically underrepresented populations (i.e. indigenous and Afro-Peruvian communities, journalists from regions outside of Lima and Cusco). The final list of participants will be approved by IRI.

Co-Facilitation of Training Series

This fellowship program will begin with a series of at least four virtual capacity-building workshops in each country on investigative skills and techniques to uncover corruption and illicit financial transactions. Training topics ought to include the following:

1. Government Oversight – Concepts and tools for the media’s role in providing accountability to government processes
2. Understanding the legal environment – How to identify where government institutions are breaking official regulations
3. Ethics in Journalism – The importance of credibility and impartiality in reporting
4. Digital Journalism – The use of social media, database tools and systems, and web sources to inform and disseminate reporting
5. Physical and Digital Security – Security tools, resources and best practices to safeguard journalists virtually and physically.

In coordination with IRI, the sub-awardee will identify and contract experts to train on at least two of these modules. IRI will work with the sub-awardee to identify international and regional trainers to support the trainings. Each trainer must receive approval from IRI before they are officially invited to conduct a module.

On-Going Support to Investigative Research

Throughout the training modules, journalists should develop and hone their own investigative research projects. The sub-awardee will provide technical support and advice to journalist fellows to improve their own ongoing investigative research or develop plans for new investigative research. As funding allows, the sub-awardee should provide seed funding to financially support promising investigative projects being spearheaded by the journalist participants. IRI recommends allocating funding for at least three projects, to be provided after the training series.

Specific Responsibilities:

- Liaise with media trainers and journalist participants to organize workshops

- Provide and manage resources and investigative journalist experts to train participants on role of government in corruption prevention and the legal framework that regulates it.
- Customize, tailor and provide feedback on IRI's media training curriculum.
- Conduct a baseline and end-line evaluation of the quality of journalist participants' investigative work. The evaluations will measure the change and growth of journalists' ability to apply investigative skills. The sub-awardee must evaluate at least half of participants using an IRI-provided scorecard.

Should the sub-awardee believe that in-person trainings will not be feasible given the COVID-19 pandemic and resulting travel and meeting restrictions, the organization should provide an approach to organizing and conducting digital trainings. This approach should outline how to engage and involve participants on a virtual platform.

Technical Applications:

This will be a Fixed Amount Subaward (FAS) due to the clear deliverables that will contribute to milestone/activities under this project.

Cost applications should not exceed $25,000 USD. This amount should cover all salaries for staff, logistics, supplies and other administrative expenses necessary to carry out the scope of work. Please note that IRI will pay expenses directly related to four days of training venue (either virtual or in-person depending on local regulations), catering and other logistics for program beneficiaries, but will not cover sub-awardee staff participation costs in these activities, which should be considered in the subawardee's budget. IRI will cover the expenses for travel, lodging and honorarium for two regional or international experts. All other trainers should be covered by.

All one-time and recurring costs must be fully described in the budget. Rates should be quoted, inclusive of all but showing separately, costs of inspection, services, transportation, taxes, import duties if any and other levies.

- Personnel – In general, employees receiving benefits from the applicant organization are considered staff. Consultants hired to assist with the program, who do not receive benefits, should be included under contractual. Identify staffing requirements by each position title and brief description of duties. For clarity, please list the annual salary of each position, percentage of time and number of months devoted to the project. (e.g., Administrative Director: $30,000/year x 25% x 8.5 months; calculation: $$30,000/12 = $2,500 \times 25\% \times 8.5 \text{ months} = $5,312.5$).
- Travel - Staff and any participant travel:
 - International airfare
 - In-country travel (not in the United States)
 - Domestic travel in the United States, if any
 - Per diem/maintenance: includes lodging, meals and incidentals for both participant and staff travel. Rates of maximum allowances for U.S. and foreign travel are available from the following website: <http://www.gsa.gov/portal/category/21287> and http://aoprals.state.gov/content.asp?content_id=184&menu_id=78. Per diem rates may not exceed the published U.S. government allowance rates; however, institutions may use per diem rates lower than official government rates.
 - Please explain differences in fares among travelers on the same routes (e.g., project staff member traveling for three weeks whose fare is higher than that of staff member traveling for four months). Please note that all travel, where applicable, must be in compliance with the Fly America Act. For more information see <http://www.gsa.gov/portal/content/103191>.
- Supplies - List items separately using unit costs (and the percentage of each unit cost being charged to the grant) for photocopying, postage, telephone/fax, printing, and office supplies (for example, Telephone: $50/month x 50% = $25/month x 12 months).
- Contractual – Estimate the direct costs for items such as translation, interpretation, honoraria, local hires, legal fees, accounting/audit services, and any other contractual work that will be needed as part of the project.
 - Consultant Fees: For example lecture fees, honoraria, travel, and per diem for outside speakers or external evaluators: list number of people and rates per day (for example, 2 x $150/day x 2 days).
- Other Direct Costs- these will vary depending on the nature of the project. The inclusion of each should be justified in the budget narrative. Audit costs can be included if they are not part of the indirect pool and only the portion of the cost associated with this program.

- Indirect/Overhead Costs – applicants can choose to budget directly for costs such as rent, utilities, technology, human resources and other general operating costs, or a de minimis rate of 10% can be applied to the total amount of direct expenses budgeted.

2: Milestone Budget:

Applicant should submit a milestone budget. The milestones should include, but are not limited to, the following deliverables:

Evaluation and Award Process:

1. Applications will be evaluated by IRI for compliance with administrative requirements, previous experience of similar projects by the Applicant, technical capacity, the qualifications of the personnel for the project, and prices. IRI may contact the Applicant’s previous clients and may obtain any information related to other projects that the Applicant has executed. IRI may contact any applicant for clarification or additional information, but Applicants are advised that IRI reserves the right to make decisions based solely on the information provided with the applications. IRI may but is not obligated to conduct additional negotiations prior to issuance of a contract, and may at its sole discretion elect to issue contracts to one or more applicants.
2. Mathematical errors will be corrected in the following manner: If a discrepancy exists between the total price proposed and the total price resulting from multiplying the unit price by the corresponding amounts, then the unit price will prevail and the total price will be corrected. If there were a discrepancy between the numbers written out in words and the amounts in numbers, then the amount expressed in words will prevail. If the Applicant does not accept the correction, the offer will be rejected.

3. IRI may determine that an application is unacceptable if the prices proposed are materially unbalanced between line items or sub-line items. Unbalanced pricing exists when, despite an acceptable total evaluated price, the price of one or more contract line items is significantly overstated or understated as indicated by the application of cost or price analysis techniques. An application may be rejected if IRI determines that the lack of balance poses an unacceptable risk.
4. IRI will conduct a Technical/Price Weighted evaluation and source selection based on evaluation factors listed below. Technical evaluation factors have a total of X points; price evaluation has a total of X points. These factors will serve as the standard against which all technical information will be evaluated, and identify the determination factors that Applicants should address. IRI intends to evaluate applications in accordance with the Statement of Work of this RFA and make an award to the Applicant achieving the highest combined score proposal (technical and cost), demonstrating both technical compliance and price reasonableness.
5. If a cost realism analysis is performed, cost realism may be considered in evaluating performance or price.

Evaluation of Applications:

1. The applications will be evaluated by a technical evaluation committee using the criteria shown below. When evaluating the competing applications, IRI will consider the written technical/capability information provided by the applicants, and any other information obtained by IRI through its own research.
2. The criteria listed below are presented by major category, so that Applicants will know which areas require emphasis in the preparation of their applications.
3. IRI will evaluate applications in accordance with the technical criteria and weightage shown in the table below. A total 100 points are assigned according to the following criteria:

Criteria	Point
Compliance with content requested: The extent to which the firm’s proposed solution fulfills IRI’s stated objectives as set out in this RFA.	30
Past Performance: The applicant’s stability, experience and record of past performance.	30
Organizational Capacity: An assessment of the organizational capacity to achieve the proposed activity set out in the application.	20
