

International Republican Institute Survey of Cambodian Public Opinion

October 28 – November 10, 2013

Methodology

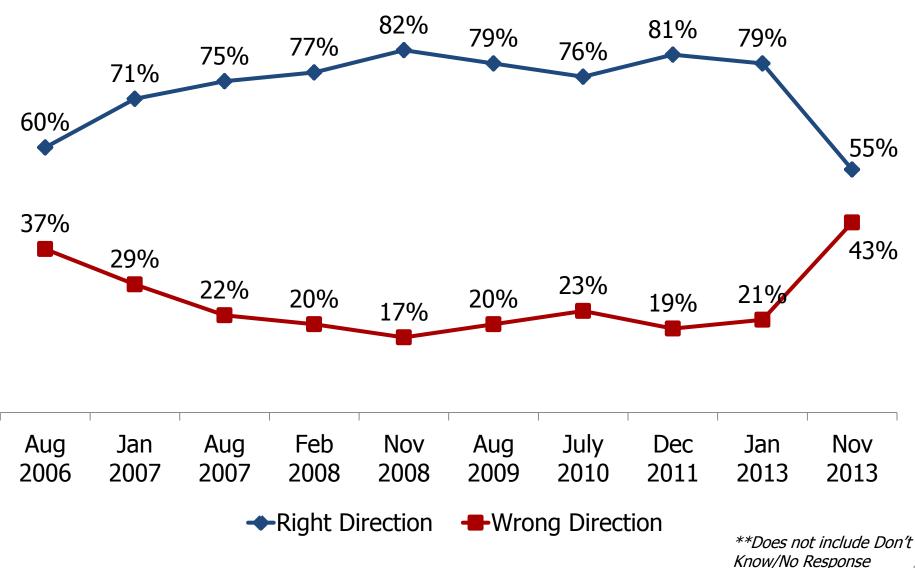

- Face-to-face interviews were conducted October 28 November 10, 2013 by the Center for Advanced Studies based in Phnom Penh, Cambodia and coordinated and analyzed by Public Opinion Strategies.
- The sample of 2,000 respondents is representative of the Cambodian population aged 18 or older and is proportional to population by province, to urban/rural distribution and to gender.
- Respondents were disqualified if they or any member of their family was employed as a journalist or editor in one of the media outlets; an employee of a political party; a member of municipal, town or provincial government or national parliament; an employee of one of the ministries; an employee of a public relations agency or marketing agency; or an employee of an agency or institute of public opinion research.
- The survey was conducted according to a random nationwide, three-stage stratified, Simple Random Sampling Without Replacement method. In the first stage, the survey was stratified by 24 provinces. In the second stage, the survey was further stratified by urban/rural. In the third stage, the survey was stratified by gender.
- Additionally, respondents within each village were identified by a random selection of street addresses and the random walk method for households. Upon random household selection, respondents in each household were chosen based on the Kish Grid method.
- The margin of error is +/- 2.2 percent with a response rate of 89 percent.
- The nationwide survey included all provinces.
- The information in this report has been compiled in accordance with international standards for market and social research methodologies. Figures in charts and tables may not sum to 100 percent due to rounding.
